Vaccinations part 3

Following the inspiration and the path of Ye Tianshi

After the first two articles about vaccinations, many questions arisen, so I have decided to go more into details and explain the QI FEN layer, which is related to the Yin aspect of the lungs (the Yang is the skin layer), stomach, large intestine, small intestine, gallbladder and the interstitial tissue or layer called MO YUAN. In the QI FEN layer, we have the highest concentration of immune energy what we call WEI QI. When Evil Qi penetrates into this layer, a strong fever will appear usually in the afternoon, sometimes with over 40 degrees. If the bowel movement is not impaired, a cooling method will be used to control the fever like BAI HU TANG decoction, but if the evil qi penetrates into the large intestine, and mixes with some food residue, dry constipation, high fever and thirst will appear, the tongue body will be red and the coating yellowish, brown and dry. In that particular situation, the purgative method with rhei radix et rhizoma - da huang or DA CHENG QI TANG decoction should be used. Paracetamol, Ibuprofen, Aspirin will obviously reduce the fever, but the WEI QI and the kidney YANG will be weakened and the evil toxins will remain in the body and hide into other layers (mutation). When the pathogen penetrates into the YING FEN layer, the nervous system - heart and brain - is in danger and QING YING TANG decoction should be used.

The side-effects will not show up necessarily few days after the injection, but in many cases only years later...

When the pathogen moves into the XUE FEN, the symptoms will be: temporary low platelet count, which can cause unusual bleeding or bruising (blood heat). The major tongue will turn dark red, with little coating and thirst and the mind will be confused. YING FEN syndrom is one of the most common side effects of vaccinations. The common symptoms will be also: seizure (jerking or staring) often associated with fever and mental confusion, the child will cry or decoction in this case is XI JIAO DI HUANG TANG. Infection of the lungs (pneumonia) or the brain and spinal cord coverings (encephalitis, meningitis), rash all over the body (Wei Fen Syndrom), the acupuncture points pericard 3 and bladder 40 will be red, the skin rash is either all over the body or following the yang ming pathway on the trunk and the face. This is for example one of the dangers of MMRV vaccine (Measles, Mumps, Rubella and Varicella). On the long-term side-effects we can find deafness, long-term seizures, coma, lowered consciousness and brain damages. We can see the relation between the blood XUE FEN, the CNS and the brain. The XUE FEN has itself four layers or pathologies: 1 - Blood Heat (skin rash), 2- Bleeding, 3- Yin deficiency with empty heat (weight lost) and 4- Internal Wind (tremor, seizures, jerking) also called NEI FENG. This are exactly the symptoms and layers listed above.

YING FEN syndrom is one of the most common side effects of vaccinations.

It is obvious that vaccinations promote the penetration of evil fire toxins or even evil damp heat toxins (Hepatitis B) into the deepest layers according to the theory of Ye Tianshi. The listed side effects can be found in any medical books or on the internet, but only a TCM doctor with a holistic understanding and knowledge will be able to follow the tract and discover easily the mutations of the evil qi through the different pathologies. Those mutations will not happen necessarily few days after the injection, but it will in many cases happen years later, and show up like Morbus Alzheimer (flu vaccination), Parkinson, Multiple Sclerosis, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, Essential Tremor, Multiple System Atrophy or what we call generally auto-immune sicknesses. The common symptoms will be a degeneration of the nervous system and the brain. You can give to those sicknesses the name you want, the root will be the same for all of them.

Which Toxic Metals Are Found In Vaccines?

Mercury is the best known toxic metal found in vaccines. It is the main ingredient in thimerisol, a chemical used to "sanitize" vaccines. This means that it is added to kill off contaminants that are found in almost all vaccines.

Vaccines are generally grown on animal organs, and the culture medium is sometimes contaminated with various bacteria, viruses, parasites and other foreign matter. Thus, toxic metals may be added to the vaccine to stabilize it and prevent the growth of unwanted organisms.

Lead and cadmium may be found in some vaccine preparations. They may exist as contaminants or even as components used to stabilize, preserve or sanitize the vaccine. Aluminum may be added to vaccines as it is a known toxin to certain bacteria and may also have other uses as well.

Vaccinations may have been helpful years ago when sanitary conditions were poor and infectious diseases were rampant. Today, the epidemic of autism, ADHD, and other "new" diseases is a far greater threat. We suggest that every parent, study the issue of vaccines very carefully. It may no longer be enough to listen to a pediatrician or health department. Below are some excellent resources to present both sides of the vaccine story.
